Ann's Wrong, He Says

Dear Ann Landers: Where do you get off saying all 16-year-old boys are interested in sex? I am 16 and I am interested in lots of things, but sex is not one of them.

I am getting sick and tired of hearing you tell girls to be careful because every boy is out to get whatever he can. I'm not, and I am sure there must be other guys around just like me.

Females make up about one half of the world's population and there must be some awfully nice people in this group. One of these days I'd like to get to know some of these people better, but I am in no hurry.

There are plenty of interesting things fellows my age can do besides chasing girls. So please stop telling people that every 16-year-old boy is trying to trap some innocent chick in the back seat of a car. As a matter of fact, some guys I know have had to fight off girls. Please set the record straight. And you can print my name and city if you want to.—KANSAS

Dear Kansas: I wouldn't dare print your name and city. You'd be deluged by calls, fella. Not from girls, but from their mothers! You sound like the kind of guy every teen-age girl's mother is looking for.

It would be foolish to say ALL 16-year-old boys are interested in sex. What I said was, "Most teen-age boys are not thinking about love. The juices are flowing and they are becoming mighty curious." That statement still stands.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband has taken a job with a fine organization. It means more money and an opportunity for advancement. The only problem is the plant is located in a small town which I hate. I have told my husband I am not moving.

The major factor in my decision not to pull up stakes is my parents. I am an only child and my folks are very dear to me. They are in good health and I want to enjoy them as long as I can.

I know many women whose husbands travel during the week and come home weekends. My husband could do this, too. But he is stubbornly opposed to my staying here. Who is wrong?—BLUE GRASS TROUBLE

Dear Trouble: You are.

If your parents were ill and you had to help care for them it would be a different matter, but refusing to move to the city where your husband makes his living because you want to enjoy mama's and papa's company is not only selfish, it is childish.

Wives like you are the first to scream "The louse" when a husband becomes involved with another woman. Hang onto my address, I think you may be writing again soon with another kind of problem.

Confidential to Scared To Death: No one can force you to marry the girl against your will. Furthermore, if I understand your letter correctly, you are still married to "Mona Lisa." From the description you give of "Mudfence's" father you would be lucky if the parole officer got to you first. You need a lawyer.

When romantic flames turn to warm embraces is it love or matrimony? Send for the booklet "Love Or Sex And How To Tell The Difference" by Ann Landers. Enclose a long, stamped self-addressed envelope and 30c in coin with your request. Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of the Press-Herald, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

COUNT MARCO

Please Muzzle These Morons

Lord deliver you from so-called professional women. I have two in mind, Betty Friedan and Clare Boothe Luce.

A recent survey (not theirs) indicated that 90 per cent of the married women interviewed DID NOT DISLIKE being housewives and would not toss over their happy homes at the first outside-the-home career offer they might receive. They were quite content with their way of living.

But there sits Mrs. Friedan turning out one book after another and deploring the fact that American wives are slaves and drones, toiling away, miserable and repressed, withheld from their "natural" right to suffer with men who battle the daily business world. Being a good wife and mother is an archaic way of life, she claims.

She cries out in print that you women are the natural leaders of the world and men should gladly exchange places to do the suffering silently on the homemaking front.

Mrs. Clare Boothe Luce says that "there's no need for alimony. Ex-wives should be given retroactive salaries for past maintenance of a home." This figure she feels should be in excess of $10,000 a year.

Let's break down the figures and Mrs. Luce with them. A good live-in housekeeper can be secured for about $200 per month with room and board included. This totals $2400 per year.

Out of this she must pay for her own cleaning, cosmetics, car payments, clothes purchases and other ordinary living expenses.

But you, as the wife, not only receive room and board but all your clothes, travel, car and maintenance, furniture, home and the luxuries you take for granted.

Deduct the cost of these items from the $2400 figure and you end up owing him quite a bit when the split comes.

Too, Mrs. Luce blithely ignores the fact that if you're on the verge of becoming an ex-wife, then you're a disappointment to him and haven't been doing the job as well as he was led to expect. He should be able to fire you at will with two weeks' notice. Well, why not?

If Mrs. Luce wants retroactive payments for ex-wives, why shouldn't the husband be permitted to deduct FIRST of all the money he spent on you during the years of marriage?

Hospitals Says Medicare Cumbersome, Inadequate

Twenty-six Southland hospitals today asked for relief from what they called "cumbersome and inadequate" Medicare provisions in a telegram to Congressman Cecil R. King (D-17th District) and James B. Utt (R-35th District). The two Congressmen are members of the House ways and Means Committee, which began hearings on a bill to amend the Social Security

Act's provisions for Medicare health insurance last Friday. Among the hospitals represented in a telegram to the two congressmen were Little Company of Mary Hospital, Torrance Memorial Hospital, Riviera Community Hospital, and Harbor General Hospital. Specifically, the hospitals charged that four provisions of the Medicare program were "cumbersome and inadequate."

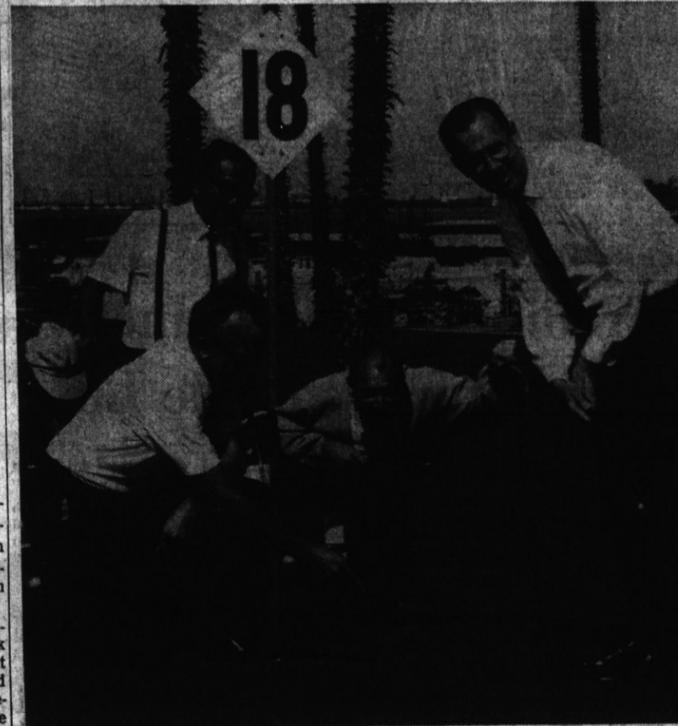

These include: • Costs for patients who are under 65 years of age have had to be increased because reimbursements to hospitals for patients over 65 years of age fail to cover complete hospital costs. • Medicare does not pay its share of the hospitals' needs to meet the expenses of current indebtedness, much less their capital requirements for modernization and expansion. • Paper work has created an "administrative nightmare" which often costs more than the expense which is being claimed. • Delays in paying the hospitals have forced the hospitals to borrow extra money to tide over cash requirements until federal reimbursements are received.

In addition to the four Torrance hospitals, the telegram was signed for Gardena Community Hospital, for Bay Harbor Hospital in Harbor City, for the Gardena Memorial Hospital, and the Wilmington Community Hospital. A total of 26 hospitals joined in the plea for relief from the provisions of the Medicare bill.

Registration at College Slated

Students planning to enroll at El Camino College for the fall semester of 1967 will have to make their plans early this year, to Leo M. Christian, dean of admissions, said today.

Registration will begin Aug. 21 and end Sept. 1. No late registration periods are scheduled.

"This will apply to both full-time and part-time students planning to enroll in either daytime or evening classes," Christian said.

"Students will be disappointed if they hope to register after Labor Day, which has been the custom in the past for many part-time students," he added.

REGISTRATION for continuing full-time students who complete the present spring semester is scheduled Aug. 21 and 22. Continuing part-time students who complete the spring semester will register Aug. 23.

New and re-entering full-time students will begin sign-ups Aug. 25. They may secure enrollment material from the admissions office beginning June 1 and make appointments for testing and counseling beginning June 22.

NEW AND re-entering part-time students will begin sign-ups Aug. 28. Class schedules and reservations to register will be available July 3.

State Acts On Three Licenses

SACRAMENTO—The state department of alcoholic beverage control has ordered a 30-day suspension of the on-sale beer license of Robert C. Willingham, the Playmate, 20706 S. Normandie Ave., on charges of permitting lewd performances by an entertainer.

The suspension takes effect May 25.

The department announced it has overruled a protest and will issue an on-sale general liquor license to Robert F. Earle Enterprises, Inc., the Red Onion, 23305 Hawthorne Blvd. The protest had contended the premises were in the immediate vicinity of a school.

In another action, the department denied an application of Morris I. Weinberg, trustee for the Empire Savings and Loan Association, for an on-sale general liquor license for the Mariner Motor Hotel, 2450 W. Pacific Coast Hwy. The department said the applicant was not the true party in interest in the business to be licensed.

The earlier deadline for semester signups will permit the deans of instruction to balance classes and employ additional part-time instructors before classes begin, Christian said.

Book Drive Launched by Students at El Camino

Books and magazines—all kinds, shapes, sizes and colors—are the goal of the student-sponsored book drive which began Monday at El Camino College.

Donated books and magazines will be sorted and classified for one of three current projects of the Associated Students—Books for Ethiopian Schools, Books for Servicemen in Vietnam, and books for the Culiacan Orphanage in Sinaloa, Mexico.

Barrels have been placed on the campus near the cafeteria, the student lounge and in front of the library.

ALL TYPES of hardbound and soft cover reading materials may be donated to the three-pronged project, Alex Areyan, sophomore class president and co-chairman of the drive, said.

"We would appreciate donations of books and educational magazines such as National Geographic, reading material for children and popular fiction and non-fiction for servicemen," Areyan said. Working with Areyan as co-chairmen are Ed McGrath, student body vice-president, and Loren Landreth, student commissioner of health, education, and welfare.

THE BOOKS for Ethiopian Schools drive is being conducted in cooperation with the American Institute in Ethiopia and was spearheaded by Dr. Edgar Love, political science instructor. Its aim is to provide as many educational books and magazines as possible for Ethiopian students.

The drive for children's books represents the first part of a student cultural exchange with the University of Sinaloa, Mexico Culiacan, where the orphanage is located, is the sister-city of Manhattan Beach.

"The books for servicemen project seemed to round out the drive and make it possible for us to collect all types of books and magazines," Areyan commented.
